

Songsmiths of Sosaria Concert

PAXLAIR - August 29, 1998 - Winfield

The Songsmiths of Sosaria played a wonderful concert in PaxLair Saturday night for over an hour. More than forty people attended the concert where the Songsmiths Cherveny, Jhym, and Rhagbard Tramont and our own PaxLair Bard Dejen delighted the audience with many a song and tale.

Luigi Aiello

The concert was held in front of Luigi's Pizzeria in PaxLair. Luigi cooked up piping hot pizzas while his two waitresses Lenora and Mecca served the hungry and thirsty customers. During part of the concert, Luigi sat in his comfortable chair on his patio and listened to the fine music.

In all, ten songs were sung with perfect instrumental accompaniment. I offer the lyrics to two of the songs sung, one from the Songsmiths and the other from none other than our favorite Bard in PaxLair.

Barratus the Necromancer

Sung by Cherveny

Now, much has been said about this one about how he is a foul fiend.

I say look again! What does he seek done?

Then you can act, if there is the need.

Two necromancers in Love, Barratus and Shara Crene given power by the foul magics for evil deeds.
But their thoughts turned to that of the good and clean,
thus they were harvested as if they were reeds.

Barratus found a way back to the living,
then sought a way to bring back his wife.
Alas all he found were people most unforgiving and people who sought after his life.

To retrieve items he needed he quested
to revive his beloved from the grave his only goal.
But everywhere he turned, he found himself bested
thus found himself taking on a new role.

If all were against him, he would attack the world,
no pity had they shown him, why should he pity them?
But deep inside, a flame of goodness is still interred
but how can one help the good, and yet the evil, stem.

Some noble questors found the bones of Shara, his beloved and sought to sue them to summon the dark mage.
Will he come to reclaim the bones of his wife, most coveted?
Or will his hand once more be turned to rage?

The Orcs

Sung by Dejen

Twass a cold and dark night
The orcs came looking for a fight.
They saw our numbers and ran away

To attack another day.

We didnt wait nor hesitate

To attack the place where they lie in wait.

When we arrived at the place

We where suprised--they didn't show their face.

When we found the orcish fort

They laughed at us with a snort.

They denied what we said

Even threatened to take off a head.

We stood our ground, did not give in

A new courage was found within.

We a slew an orcish guard.

He died quite quick nor was he hard.

After that we did return

For our home we did yearn

So here we are back in Pax

A wonderful place to relax.

We thank the bards and the audience for a fantastic concert. An encore performance will hopefully be scheduled in the near future.
